13.1.1　Create and Clone a New GitHub Repository

Before you get started, Basil wants to make sure you have access to GitHub. Once you have logged in to GitHub, create a new repository and clone the repository to your computer.

Create a GitHub repository for your project and name it "Mapping_Earthquakes." Make the repository public. Then add a README for the repository and clone it on your computer.